“The money fund marketplace has changed and it is more important than ever before to have access to information when selecting money funds. Not only are institutions facing increasing pressure to find the best yields, but the need to understand the management and composition of a money fund portfolio and perform some level of due-diligence is increasingly important,” says Michael Rice, Program Manager for the Matrix Money Market Portal.

Helping financial institutions efficiently handle daily trading activity is the hallmark of the Matrix business model. The Matrix Money Market Portal service follows that objective by providing a variety of recognized money market products in a same-day trading environment, and using state-of-the-art automation features, including, reporting, confirmation, and reconciliation tools.
